Affectionately known as SoCoFoSo, the Folk Society is a non-profit educational organization that promotes the knowledge and performance of traditional and contemporary folk music. Moreover, it's a congenial association of those who play, dance, and listen to and appreciate roots music ranging from the earliest of rural fiddle tunes through bluegrass and country music, blues, Cajun, celtic, and even middle eastern music, up to the singer songwriters of today who are keeping the folk music tradition alive.

This is an all volunteer organization and operates by it's members taking responsibility for making things happen, as is evidenced by the annual "Sonoma County Bluegrass and Folk Festival", the monthly video taping and showing of "Santa Rosa City Limits" and other sponsored events during the year. The SCFS board meets once a month and all members are invited to submit any ideas they may have to further the cause of folk music or to volunteer or assist in any Folk Society events.

Want to join? That's easy!!! Annual dues for singles are $10.00 and $15.00 for families.

Here's What you will receive:

Discounts on all Folk Society events.

FolkNotes-our bi-monthly newsletter filled with information on the local music scene, including special radio broadcasts dealing with the folk music genre.

Contact with other folk music lovers. The more the merrier right?

(Betty and Herb, we will miss you both!!!)

The Sonoma County Bluegrass and Folk Festival Saturday March 14

Sebastopol Community Center on Morris Street 1PM to 9PM.

Featuring:
Laurie Lewis and Tom Rozum
The Mary Gibbons and Michael Stadler Band with Paul Knight and Jon Mitgurd
Rosebud Blue
Kapalakiko Hawaiian Band
Ray Bierl Trio
Earl Brothers

Click -here- for Times and events.

For more info call: Mark Hogan 707-829-8012.

Check out these photos of last years Sonoma County Bluegrass and Folk Festival. http://mikemelnyk.com/sonomaBG_08/

Old Time music is not dead!!! Get ready for the August 2009 Old Time Music campout in Booneville. Check it out here.

5th Sundays' Pick 'n Potlucks for 2008; these will be on March 30, June 29, August 31 and November 30 at the Subud Hall in Sebastopol (234 Hutchins Ave). Don't miss it!
Call Steve Delap at: 707-542-3798 or Mark Hogan at: 707-829-8012 for more info.

The sad news of John Stewart and Nick Reynolds of The Kingston Trio.